

An oil painting depicting two soldiers in 19th-century military uniforms riding horses through a stone archway. The soldiers are wearing dark blue tunics with white epaulettes and breeches, and tall black bicorne hats with white plumes. They are riding dark brown horses. The archway is made of yellow stone and has a large wooden door with chains. The background shows a glimpse of a red building and a blue sky. The overall style is that of a historical painting.
